

Paolo Meroni

role

Director of Education

Istituto Marangoni School of Fashion Milano

After graduating in engineering and management, Paolo Meroni gained extensive experience in fashion marketing and fashion product. By working with leading manufacturers in the Italian textile industry, he has been able to combine the consulting approach with the attention to the development of his technical skills. He's been working with Istituto Marangoni Milano since 2004 as Brand Marketing and Financial and Control teacher; he was appointed Programme Leader in 2010 and Director of Education one year later in 2011. In those years, he also specialized in andragogy studies through a postgraduate course in academic practice at Manchester Metropolitan. He has participated as a lecturer at seminars and university courses both in Italy and abroad.

Starting from 2012, Paolo Meroni has closely followed the opening stages of the new offices in Paris and London, and then Shanghai, as a group academic coordinator, and has also followed the start-up of the new Istituto Marangoni Design School in Milano. Since 2012, he's been a member of the Higher Education Academy.
