

Diana Marian Murek

role

Director of Education

Istituto Marangoni School of Fashion London

Diana Marian Murek is a fashion designer and journalist of German origins who lives and works since seventeen years in Italy. Diana graduated in fashion design at AMD / Akademie Mode Design in Hamburg in 1997 and moved immediately after her studies to Milan where she began her career at the Italian brand Costume National. In her career as fashion designer she worked for many fashion companies such as Wolford, Von Fürstenberg and Francesco Scognamiglio. In 2003 she began to lecture at the Istituto Marangoni in Milan in the area of fashion design, expanding later courses fashion styling and fashion business. In 2009 Diana becomes the author of the blog IntoTheFashion.com, which found great success in the fashion world for its critical and educational format, and led Diana to a journalistic line of work through various publishing projects at Grazia.it, Redmilk Magazine, Flair and Missoni Moments. In January 2015 Diana has been appointed Programme Leader in fashion design for 2nd years and one-year courses in Milano and in July 2015 she became the Director of Education in the London school of fashion.