

London and Paris School

AI-Curated Fashion Image & Film Production

OVERVIEW

Given your background in Fashion Styling, we would like to introduce AI-Curated Fashion Image & Film Production, a course exploring how AI transforms high-end fashion image-making and film production while preserving the essence of human creativity and artistic authorship. Through a combination of theoretical lectures, practical workshops, and immersive production experiences, participants will master AI-assisted workflows that enhance — rather than replace — the craftsmanship behind fashion photography, styling, casting, and film direction.

Indeed, participants will have the opportunity to conceptualize, produce, and present two professional-level projects either in Paris and London that will emphasize collaboration with real models, real garments, and authentic production teams.

In this course participants will have an exclusive access to Kive.ai, a web-based creative workspace that combines AI content generation, lightweight post-production, and digital asset management (DAM) in one place—so teams can create, refine, and organize visual content without splitting work across multiple tools. By the end of the program, you will have produced two professional fashion communication campaigns—photo and video—that demonstrate the integration of AI within real model and garment production, while building a fully curated digital portfolio ready for professional publication or agency presentation. You will develop a strategic workflow toolkit for embedding AI into visual production and creative direction, and gain the professional competencies to lead AI enhanced creative projects across fashion
