

Sergio Nava

role

Director of Education

Istituto Marangoni School of Design Milano

Sergio Nava is an Italian architect and designer. He graduated from the Politecnico di Milano, and obtained a “PG Cert in Learning and Teaching in HE” at the Manchester Metropolitan University. He gained a long-standing experience as a Professor in both Italian and international universities. He has been the Programme Leader of the Visual Design Department at Istituto Marangoni Design, where he is currently the Director of Education.

He has been working in the design and communication field for over 20 years. In 2007 he founded the design brand Kreation. While working at Kreation he won several international awards, like the Red Dot Design Award 2010. In particular, among the communication awards, he won the ORO at A.D.C.I. Award 2019 with the project “Suono Positivo”. He was the founder and consultant of many innovative start-ups, such as NTT Design, Restopolis (now named TheFork and under the TripAdvisor company) and Kleemotion.

His works have been published in the most renowned design magazines of the world. During his career he collaborated with important brands such as Adidas, Google, Versace and FCA.